Douglas AG, Düsseldorf
Notes for the financial year
2024/2025

I. GENERAL INFORMATION ON THE ANNUAL FINANCIAL STATEMENTS AND ACCOUNTING AND VALUATION METHODS

1. General

Douglas AG (the "Company") has its registered office in Düsseldorf and is registered in the commercial register at Düsseldorf Local Court under HRB 103560.

The Company's annual financial statements were prepared in accordance with the provisions of the German Commercial Code (HGB) and the German Stock Corporation Act (AktG) applicable to large corporations.

The Company is a large corporation within the meaning of Section 267 (3) sentence 2 HGB.

The financial year of Douglas AG begins on 1 October of each calendar year and ends on 30 September of the following calendar year.

The figures in the balance sheet and profit and loss account are uniformly stated in thousands of euros (TEUR). The amounts in the annual financial statements are rounded in accordance with commercial practice. Rounding may therefore result in minor differences, and it is also possible that individual figures may not add up exactly to the stated total.

2. Accounting and valuation methods

The annual financial statements include all assets, liabilities, prepaid expenses and deferred income, special items, expenses and income, unless otherwise required by law.

Items on the asset side have not been offset against liabilities, nor have expenses been offset against income, unless this is expressly required by the provisions of Section 246 of the German Commercial Code (HGB).

The values stated in the opening balance sheet for the financial year correspond to those in the closing balance sheet for the previous financial year. Assets and liabilities were valued individually. The valuation was based on the assumption that the company would continue as a going concern.

The valuation has been carried out prudently, namely all foreseeable risks and losses that arose up to the balance sheet date have been taken into account, even if these only became known between the balance sheet date and the preparation of the annual financial statements. Unless expressly required by law, profits have only been taken into account if they were realized by the balance sheet date. Expenses and income for the financial year have been taken into account regardless of the date of payment.

Property plant and equipment

Property plant and equipment are recognized at cost of acquisition or production less scheduled straight-line depreciation. Movable assets are generally depreciated over 1 to 3 years. Low-value assets with acquisition costs of up to TEUR 0.8 are fully depreciated in the year of acquisition, with disposal also assumed in the year of acquisition.

Financial assets

Financial assets are recognized at cost. Lower values are recognized if permanent impairments require unscheduled depreciation. If the reasons for the impairment cease to apply, reversals of impairment losses are recognized up to the cost of acquisition.

Receivables and other assets

Receivables and other assets are recognized at cost or the lower fair value.

Prepaid expenses

Prepaid expenses include certain payments that relate to expenses in the next financial year. The discounts reported under prepaid expenses are reversed in line with the term of the loans reported under liabilities to banks.

Equity

Equity is reported at nominal value.

Provisions and liabilities

The carrying amount of tax and other provisions takes into account all risks, uncertain liabilities and impending losses from pending transactions recognized at the time of reporting. In accordance with Section 253 (1) sentence 2 HGB, they are recognized at the settlement amount necessary according to reasonable commercial judgement, taking into account expected future price and cost increases. Provisions with a remaining term of more than one year are discounted at the average market interest rate corresponding to their remaining term.

Liabilities are recognized at their settlement amount.

Receivables and liabilities in foreign currencies

These are measured at the exchange rate on the date of the transaction as part of the initial measurement. Losses from exchange rate fluctuations up to the balance sheet date are always taken into account, while gains from exchange rate changes are only taken into account if the remaining term is one year or less.

3. Change in accounting and valuation methods

The accounting and valuation policies did not change compared with the previous year.

However, the Management Board is authorized, with the approval of the Supervisory Board, to exclude shareholders' subscription rights in the following cases:

- to offset fractional amounts;
- to increase the share capital against contributions in kind, in particular for the purpose of mergers or the acquisition of companies, company interests, parts of companies, industrial property rights (such as patents, utility models, trademarks or licences relating thereto) or other product rights;
- to the extent necessary to grant holders or creditors of option and/or conversion rights or corresponding option and/or conversion obligations from bonds issued or to be issued by the company and/or by a subordinate group company to grant a subscription right to the extent to which they would be entitled after exercising their option and/or conversion right or after fulfilment of the option and/or conversion obligation;
- to issue shares to service employee participation programs to members of the Management Board, persons who are or were employed by the Company or an affiliated company, and/or members of the management of an affiliated company;
- in the case of capital increases against cash contributions, if the total pro rata amount attributable to the new shares for which subscription rights are excluded does not exceed 20% of the share capital either at the time this authorization takes effect or at the time this authorization is exercised, and the issue price does not exceed the current market price of the shares by more than 20%; exceeds 20% of the share capital either at the time this authorization takes effect or at the time this authorization is exercised, and the issue price of the new shares is not significantly lower than the stock market price of the already listed shares with the same features at the time the issue price is finally determined.

The new shares will be issued at the option or conversion price determined in accordance with the authorization resolution. The new shares participate in profits from the beginning of the fiscal year in which they arise; to the extent legally permissible, the Management Board may determine that the profit participation of new shares deviates from this and from Section 60 (2) AktG, including for a fiscal year that has already expired. Board remuneration

The Management Board received total remuneration of TEUR 6,591.1 in the past fiscal year (previous year TEUR 5,955.8). The total remuneration in the current fiscal year includes long-term share-based remuneration measured at fair value at the grant date amounting to TEUR 3,708.3 (previous year TEUR 2,250.0). The number of virtual shares used to determine potential future payment amounts totals 184,859 units (previous year 174,004 units). The total remuneration for former members of the Management Board amounted to TEUR 284.0 in the fiscal year. As of 30 September 2025 there were no loans or advances to members of the Management Board or Supervisory Board. No contingent liabilities have been assumed for this group of persons.

The total remuneration of all members of the Supervisory Board amounted to TEUR 962.5 in the fiscal year (previous year TEUR 580.0).

under the above-mentioned contingent liabilities is considered unlikely. To date, Douglas AG has not been held liable under any of the aforementioned categories.

Furthermore, the Company is not aware of any indications that suggest probable utilization. According to our knowledge, the obligations underlying each category of contingent liabilities can be fulfilled by the relevant companies in all cases.

Derivative financial instruments

In accordance with Section 254 HGB there are four micro cash-flow hedge accounting relationships.

Douglas AG hedges a substantial portion of its bank financing of TEUR 800,000.0 with four interest rate swaps to minimize cash flow risks due to changes in interest rates. For this purpose, a portion of TEUR 800,000.0 is designated as a separate underlying transaction for each swap, with an interest rate swap as the hedging instrument. The underlying transactions require quarterly interest payments at the three-month EURIBOR rate on the nominal amount of TEUR 800,000.0, beginning on 15 April 2024 and ending on 8 March 2029, and contain a floor for the EURIBOR component of 0%. In the case of a negative interest rate, the interest is not hedged. The four interest rate swaps with a nominal total of TEUR 800,000.0 generate identical interest income and fixed interest payments at a fixed rate of 2.297% p.a. The receipt of the EURIBOR-based interest rate is not hedged. As a result, the rates are netted and the issuer is obliged to make net fixed-rate payments as long as the interest rate is above the floor of 0%. The swaps have a term from 8 October 2024 to 8 March 2029, covering almost the entire term of the defined underlying transactions.

Douglas applies the hypothetical derivative method to assess the ineffectiveness of the hedging relationship. Under this approach, a hypothetical derivative is used to simulate changes in the fair value of the underlying transaction, enabling measurement of the actual effectiveness of the hedging relationship. The negative fair value of the ineffective portion of the interest rate hedge as of the balance sheet date, amounting to TEUR -489.6 (previous year TEUR -489.6), is recognized as a provision for expected losses under other provisions.

The fair value of the derivatives as of the reporting date is TEUR -4 560.1 (previous year TEUR 6,411.2). The "freezing method" is applied for accounting for the effective portions of the hedging relationship.

In the context of two additional hedging relationships, there are micro cash-flow hedges because Douglas AG hedges its entire variable-rate tranche of the promissory note loans taken out in fiscal year 2024/2025 with a term of three years amounting to TEUR 141,500.0 with two interest rate swaps to minimize cash flow risks due to interest rate changes. In each case, half of TEUR 141,500.0 is designated as the underlying transaction with an interest rate swap as the hedging instrument.

The underlying transactions require semi-annual interest payments at the six-month EURIBOR rate on the nominal amount of TEUR 141,500.0, beginning on 17 September 2025 and ending on 7 March 2028, and include a floor of 0% for the EURIBOR component. If the interest rate is negative, interest is not hedged. The two interest rate swaps with a nominal total of TEUR 141,500.0 generate identical interest income and fixed interest payments at a fixed rate of 2.135% p.a. The receipt of the EURIBOR-based interest rate is not hedged. Consequently, the rates are netted and the issuer is obliged to make net fixed-rate payments as long as the rate is above the floor of 0%. The swaps have a term from 17 September 2025 to 7 March 2028, covering almost the entire term of the defined underlying transactions.

Douglas uses the hypothetical derivative method to assess the ineffectiveness of the hedging transaction. This approach uses a hypothetical derivative to simulate changes in the fair value of the underlying transaction, which allows the actual effectiveness of the hedging transaction to be measured. The positive market value of the ineffective portion of the interest rate hedge as at the balance sheet date amounts to TEUR 0.0. The total fair value of the derivatives as at the balance sheet date amounts to TEUR 78.2. The freeze method is used to recognize the effective portions of the valuation unit in the balance sheet.
